New books, journals and magazines published in 2019: Explorer, March, 2019. The mission of Southern New England (SNE) Astro is to bring information about astronomy, space exploration and space science to the public. We produce and share information for educators, students, collectors, and anyone with an interest in the universe. In addition, we can often identify the author of the source on the contents page and provide them with copies of the book or journal. If you have copies you want to donate or trade please contact us. Call for Papers: SNE Astro Monthly Newsletter The mission of the SNE Astro Newsletter is to highlight the cutting-edge work being conducted by astro-scientists in and around Southern New England. In addition, we feature special coverage of astronomical news and activities in the region.

We also provide critical reviews of recent literature. All content is prepared by the SNE Astro editorial staff and reviewed by the SNE Astro Advisory Board prior to posting. All of the proceeds from the SNE Astro Newsletter are used to support the SNE Astro website. The SNE Astro website is updated periodically to provide astro-scientists, educators, researchers, and the general public with the best resources for astronomy, and more specifically, for the work being done in Southern New England. These resources include access to the data sets of the Harvard University, Smithsonian, and the European Southern Observatory (ESO). In addition, our efforts are used to provide local chapters of the American Astronomical Society with chapter facilities and continuing education classes. Our goal is to bring the program and its instructors to your community. Contact Dave Scott at davies_1@hou.wsu.edu or (573) 884-6826 for questions, suggestions, or a program for your community.
