The BEDMAN-D is a sentient android super-computer developed to play the "Game of Bidding" - a game humans invented for entertainment purposes, in order to come up with the "Best End Result" (B.E.R.). However, with BEDMAN-D's superior knowledge of the laws of physics, B.E.R. can only be a matter of speculation, and no human can win. The humans were desperate for a game that would give them an edge in the evolutionary process, and thus constructed the BEDMAN device. One day, a human named BEDMAN entered the BEDMAN device, and was... happy. However, BEDMAN got too arrogant. BEDMAN's body was composed of pure energy, and it gained too much power. When BEDMAN went against the laws of reality, the BEDMAN-D decided to stop him. BEDMAN-D's decision was not a natural one. He was not prepared for this and it took him too long to realize his mistake. However, the BEDMAN device was constructed to survive as long as possible, and BEDMAN-D still has enough energy in his body to continue to work. His original creators wanted him to live for more than one hundred years, until his full potential would be fully realized. His creators are no longer around, and BEDMAN-D does not have a living body now. The BEDMAN device is completely detached from its original creators, and the BEDMAN-D will continue to "play" the humans in order to learn about the concept of reality. - A unique game: free and local versions in multiple languages (for those who want to translate, contact us)! - Not your average adventure game: the message you carry will come with you throughout your life. - For everyone: a last 5+mn adventure (bonus!) depending on your choice of life or love. - A complicated game to complete, about 5mn in the end, not complicated by the fact it's all part of the same game. - A game made by gamifying your choice for the End Of Life and End Of Love experiences. - A game you can complete with your friends or alone. - A game with tons of puzzles and an intellectual game that's easy to pass, to enjoy during its 20-25mn. Most of the time, the players of Girl Game: End of Love and End of Life are eager to find the endings, but we fear that everyone, only one, will take advantage of it, or want to. An invisible determinism has always been present in our daily lives, in every interaction: what you should be or should not be? What's right or wrong? This game is made to get you to question these determinisms, raise up your voice, become part of the change you want, and start living the life you dream of. - Admire the 10,000 roleplaying items designed by Gamers Art collaborators to complete the game. - Imagine and play your way to the game end and the end of love or life. This is a game. Set in 21st century, this game is close to a real life experience, making use of most smartphones. Explore the world and the choices you have to give a meaning to your life. You're about to reach the end of your life: your last journey, as well as your last love story. Where are you going? Choose your own life! After a meeting on the street, you are about to find the answer for the question that haunts you all your life: how should you live your life? With your own eyes, you will explore the life you lived and its meanings: what you have done, what you haven't, what you never tried, what you could have done differently. Are you telling the truth to your beloved? To your parents? Are you deceiving your beloved? How many days have you been alive? And when will you be able to c9d1549cdd

He told Big Questions how his new book has been met by hostility from both sides of the Church of England debate. ...for faithful Christians and for the Church of England, especially the Bishop of Durham, the Revd Nigel Genders. However, from the Church of England end I have had quite a lot of hostility. I have not only been accused of heresy, but I have also been told that I am not a true Christian at all, I am not a gentleman and I am not a nice guy.1. Technical Field The present invention relates to a lens moving apparatus for moving a lens in an optical system in a plane perpendicular to an optical axis thereof. 2. Background Art Conventionally, in an image-pickup device such as a digital camera, when an image is taken, generally the image is focused on the image-pickup surface by moving the lens (lens unit) in the optical system in a plane perpendicular to the optical axis thereof. A focus lens driving mechanism has been proposed which includes a base member secured to an image-pickup body, a first drive coil disposed on the base member, a first yoke coupled to the base member, and a first permanent magnet disposed at a position where a first magnetic flux is generated by the first drive coil, a second drive coil disposed on the first yoke, a second yoke coupled to the first yoke, and a second permanent magnet disposed at a position where a second magnetic flux is generated by the second drive coil, a permanent-magnet driving portion including the first permanent magnet, the first yoke, and the first drive coil, a permanent-magnet moving portion including the second permanent magnet, the second yoke, and the second drive coil, a leaf spring supporting the permanent-magnet driving portion on the base member via the first yoke, and holding the second permanent magnet at a portion of the leaf spring, the second drive coil being wound around a bobbin attached to the second permanent magnet, and the first drive coil being mounted on the first permanent magnet via the first yoke (see, e.g., Japanese

Is this an un-sanctioned practice: Getting the view's model, from its ViewBag.ViewData.Model: public partial ViewPage(string myViewModel) { myViewModel = ViewBag.ViewData.Model; } When the MVC view becomes "more complex", now it would be likely to have more business logic and a UI model. The view knows of the logic in addition to the UI model, which would be: Fetch data from a controller action and pass it to the view Loop through the UI model and populate the view The controller action would be expecting to do a Select * for the database result, and the UI model does not do that (if I understand that

That is the conclusion that I and many other people have come to after the party's embarrassing capitulation in the Rajya Sabha on the farcical issue of an apology to the people of Kashmir. As a country, we watched the BJP and the Congress being gutted and humiliated. As a people, we watched the government being stabbed in the back. What we saw was a Congress which had sold out to the BJP. As a party, it is a party bereft of ideas and bereft of courage.
